A Voice from Hunnicutt.

"SELF CONCEITED. - Some two or three gentlemen are sufficiently self-conceited as to suppose that they hold the destiny of Virginia in the palms of their hands. What stupidity ! As we have said before, so we now repeat, that no half-dozen men can nor shall rule Virginia. They may strut and swell, puff and blow, and rob men of their just dues; they may fatten for a time off of the sorrows and misfortunes of the poor and oppressed citizens of Virginia, but in the end they will be held up to the scorn and everlasting contempt of every honest man, woman and child in the State, and their very names will stink in the nostrils of all men. We warn Republicans, white and colored, against those office-seeking and officeholding vampyres, who would suck the last drop of blood from the veins of their fellowmen, and would if possible, sell their God, their country, and their own insignificant souls for money and office. Look how they strut -listen how they brag. They boast of having all the brains—they brag of their thous-ands. We neither envy their brains nor their money. They exercise their brains to cheat, defraud, and swindle honest men out of their just rights.

"We will hold these harpies, these miserable Shylocks, up to the ridicule, scorn and contempt of all men before we are done with them. These miserable swindlers and robbers shall never rule Virginia. Nor shall they ever hold office in this State by the popular vote of the people. We have said it, and we'll stand to it, and die by it. No six men shall ever rule Virginia. No one man, nor any six men, hold Virginia in the palms of their hands .--God torbid."-Hunnicutt's New Nation.

This is bitter upon "carpet baggers." But Hunnicutt cuts out a big job for himselt.

DISCOVERIES IN PALESTINE.—The explorations of the Holy Land, going on under the direction of Lieut. Warren, are attracting much attention, in England especially, where the funds are mostly raised for the prosecution of the work. At a recent meeting in London, of those interested, a report was made of the proceedings thus far; and it was stated that Lieut. W. had made discoveries of the utmost importance in Jerusalem, which not only tended to throw new light upon the original features of the Temple Hill, but led to the hope that before long sufficient data would be obtained for forming a tolerably accurate opinion upon the various sites in the Holy City, which had been so long matters of dispute. "For the first time the actual streets of the ancient city have been reached, underground passages which have been hidden for centuries by the mass of superincumbent ruins have been brought to light, and by degrees a complicated network of drains and reservoirs is being laid bare. In the valleys, by a succession of shafts, many of them sunk to enormous depths, discoveries of interest have been made with regard to the original course and character of valleys. The limits of the hill and position of the wall of Ophel have been in a great measure ascertained, and shafts sunk on the south of the wall of the Harem area have shown that the account given by Josephus of the giddy height of the battlements of the ancient city at this point is not the exaggeration that up to this time it has always beenbelieved to have been. The researches of Jerusalem had caused other operations to be suspended, but several surveying expeditions had been made, and Lieut. W. had thoroughly surveyed the Philistine plain as far north as Gaza, together with a large tract of country to the southwest of Jerusalem. He had also surveyed portions of the Jordan and its valleys. The work had been supported by subscriptions from many classes, and, among others, by the large and influential body of Freemasons, who had encouraged the attempts being made to search out the sites of the works erected by the famous operative craftsmen of that ancient Order."

A JOKE ON THE LAWYERS.—A day or two since, quite an amusing episode occurred in the Criminal Court room. Mr. Joseph Platz, a restaurant proprietor on Pennsylvania avenue keeps in front of his premises a wooden vessel, filled with water, in which he generally has one or more turtles. Small boys white and colored take extreme delight in poking sticks, at those turtles, and Mr. Platz is continually warning them away. A colored boy whom he ordered off did not obey the summons, and Mr. Platz seized a full grown clam, and taking aim struck the colored offender on the head, considerably injuring the clam, but doing no harm to the head. For this piece of sport Mr. Platz was arrested and required to give bail for his appearance at court to answer a charge of assault and battery. On Tuesday the case was called for trial. The principal witness for the prosecution was an "intelli-gent contraband." The judge asked the witness whether he saw the defendant in the court room, and if so to point him out. The witness looked around and observing a jolly gentleman comfortably enscouced in a chair in close affinity to the "legal lore." exclaimed: "I sees him; dat's him, dar," pointing to our jolly friend, who happens to be a worthy member of the bar.

The announcement caused a broad laugh. His honor then asked the witness if he was not mistaken in the identity of the person, when he took a second look around, and said, "I guess I is," and, pointing to another gen-tleman who occupied a seat within the bar, exclaimed, "Dat's him; but he had shabed his whiskers since he frowed dat clam." Quite a guffaw ensued, for the gentleman selected as the defendant on this occasion is known as one of the most prominent practitioners in our District courts. The Judge, promptly dismissed the witness, and the jury declared Mr. Platz not guilty. - Wash. Rep.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affection, which renders life miserable and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victims of impropriety.— Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise.
